

Productivity Strategies
Graduate Writing Challenges	Strategies
Competing Demands , leading to writing being neglected in favor of other work	Prioritizing Writing Writing “every” day Making appointments with your writing Writing at your best time of day Using shorter blocks of time
Deferred Gratification , leading to mismanaged writing deadlines	Setting Goals Setting detailed and informed quantitative goals Augmenting these goals with qualitative goals along the way
Isolation , leading to feeling unsupported as a writer by your broader community	Building Writing Community Accepting that writing can be done with others, in community Experimenting to find the writing community that will work for you
Self- Doubt , leading to writing being viewed with dread	Developing Writing Awareness Learning about common emotional states associated with writing
Missing Expertise , leading to a lack of confidence in writing ability	Accessing Writing Support Finding resources to support your growing expertise in writing